Clemson University School of Accountancy and Legal Studies

Faculty position in Internal Auditing/Auditing – Rank open

The School of Accountancy and Legal Studies of Clemson University invites applications for a position in Internal Auditing. The primary teaching responsibility associated with this position will be internal auditing, at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Other areas of focus include conducting research leading to publications in refereed academic and professional journals, establishing and maintaining relationships with the members of the local chapter of IIA, and overseeing the School’s endorsed program in internal auditing. A Ph.D. or D.B.A. in accounting is required. A.B.D.s close to completion will be considered. Professional experience and certification are desirable. A strong commitment to teaching, scholarship, and professional interaction consistent with AACSB standards is expected. Faculty rank and salary will be commensurate with the experience and professional qualifications of the person appointed to the position. Applications received by November 1, 2005 are assured full consideration. Contact: Dr. Ralph Welton, School of Accountancy and Legal Studies, Clemson University, Clemson, SC  29634-1303.
